HAUPTMANN DEFENSE TO DELIVER THREE STUNNING BLOWS

To Ask Jurist To Compel The State To Amplify Present "Vague" Indictment

WANT FUNDS RETURNED

Attempt to Run Down Several of Hauptmann's Associates

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—While New Jersey was engaged in panicky efforts to locate several associates of Bruno Richard Hauptmann believed to have been contacted in New York hotels by John Hughes Curtiss, hoax man of the Lindbergh kidnapping, the revitalized Hauptmann defense corps today planned to deliver three stunning blows to the prosecution.

Justice Thomas W. Trenchard, veteran New Jersey jurist, before whom Hauptmann will go on trial for his life on January 2, will be asked to compel the state to amplify its present "vague" indictment against Hauptmann, to say definitely whether it charges felony, murder or premeditated murder.

Defense attorneys also will ask for immediate return of all money and securities in Mrs. Hauptmann's name now tied up by the New Jersey authorities.

Third, perhaps most important, the defense will move for immediate investigation of charges it is prepared to make that Hauptmann was brutally beaten with a hammer and other weapons after his arrest.

Also in the full day's agenda of Edward J. Reilly, new chief defense counsel, and Lloyd Fisher, his fiery young assistant, was a conference with Attorney General David T. Wilentz, directing the prosecution.

Reilly and Fisher made no effort to conceal their glee over the feverish activity of the state in attempting to run down several Hauptmann associates who are believed to have conferred with Curtiss, the Norfolk shipbuilder, in New York hotels.

Though branded a hoax, Curtiss' negotiations resulted in his conviction for obstructing justice by "knowing and shielding" the kidnappers. He held several conferences in hotels here after Col. Charles A. Lindbergh asked him to negotiate with the ransom seekers. One of these hotels, it was learned, was headquarters for Isidor Fisch from whom Hauptmann maintains he unknowingly obtained $14,000 of the ransom money found in his garage.

The judge at Curtiss' trial charged the jury to acquit him if it did not believe he had contacted the actual kidnappers. The state maintained he had, and his conviction was on that basis. Now the state in the Hauptmann case hopes to prove that Hauptmann alone received the ransom.

Defense attorneys pointed out that the state's contention in the Curtiss case would be a boomerang in the Hauptmann trial.

ST. ANN'S AND OPPONENTS FAIL TO SCORE IN GAME

Sloppy Gridiron is Handicap to Players in Game for Hospital Benefit

WIN MORAL VICTORY

(By T. M. Juno)

On a gridiron drenched with rain, the St. Ann's A. A. Warriors and the Wissahickon Eagles splashed, skidded, slipped and rolled to a scoreless tie yesterday afternoon on the local field. The game was a benefit affair for the Harriman Hospital and the usual "jinx" was present—rain, again marred the game.

Although they did not win, the Saints achieved a moral victory by holding the highly-touted Eagles to a tie and almost beat them when they reached the one-yard line in the final quarter. However, the Eagles braced with the goal in sight for the local eleven and they held wonderfully to prevent the Bristolians from scoring and chalking up a victory.

A blocked kick gave the Purple and Gold eleven their opportunity to score. When Lewis attempted to boot from danger in the final period, three St. Ann's linemen rushed through and blocked the punt. It was recovered by "Moonie" Seneca with less than a yard to go for a touchdown. The Eagles called time out here and went into a huddle.

"Socks" Seneca took the oval on a short end run but was nailed in his tracks by Syrnick. Teddy Tosti tried an end run but Razzio broke through and spilled him for a seven-yard loss. The Eagles were fighting mad and determined to stop the locals. An attempted end run reverse with Tulio carrying the pigskin did not gain much ground and the only hope left for the Bucks County champions was a pass. This was tried and completed. Bornice to Seneca, but was much too short for a touchdown.

The muddy field was a hindrance to both clubs, especially in trying to kick the ball after it was soaked. Four of the visiting team's boots were blocked by the Purple and Gold linemen, but none were disastrous with the exception of the last period block which almost netted a six-pointer. Several times players on both clubs appeared on their way to Goal-land, but either a slip or the safety man would bring him down.

A skid in the first period prevented the Bucks County champions from a score. During this period, the Bristol eleven started a drive at midfield and the anti-climax was when Tulio carried the pigskin on a wide end run reverse to the ten-yard line. Tershon tried the line but to no avail and then Bornice on a wing play was shoved out of bounds on the six-yard line. Gallone failed to net anything on a plunge and on the final down Tosti carried the ball on a reverse. The play worked to perfection and Tosti had clear sailing for a touchdown. But as he went to cut in to follow his three-men interference he slipped and one knee touched the ground. He was up in a flash at the referee's whistle had blown, signifying a down. So hence, the first opportunity was lost because of the wet gridiron.

The Wissahickon team used deceptive plays throughout the entire contest and outscored the St. Ann's team in the number of first downs. Eight times the linemen had to move the ten-yard chain for the visitors, while the Purple and Gold made the required

Rathke and Phipps Will Have Show Comedy Part

The musical comedy, "Honeycomb Inn," which the Knights of Columbus are staging on November 13 and 14, witnesses the return to the stage of Bristol's most versatile comedy team, Frank Phipps and Charles Rathke. Mr. Phipps has been chosen to take the part of Sam a colored porter, and this role gives him ample opportunity to give a splendid performance in his usual inimitable style. The number which he sings is entitled "I've got horses, I've got numbers on my mind."

Mr. Rathke takes the part of a theatrical producer, Mr. Will B. Dunn. This character calls for a person who can put over many amusing and startling situations and Mr. Rathke's wide experience enables him to win everyone with his performance.

To tell more about them at this time would be to encroach on them and spoil your enjoyment so come and see them "steal the show" on November 13 and 14.

ARMISTICE DINNER IS SERVED AT LANGHORNE

SEVENTY AT AFFAIR

LANGHORNE, Nov. 5.—Seventy men and women gathered about a festive board in the Memorial House, Saturday evening, in celebration of the observance of the 16th anniversary of the signing of the Armistice. The dinner, an annual affair, was sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary with members of Jesse W. Soby Post and friends also attending.

Bouquets of chrysanthemums, candles and other decorations in the national colors, and "dough-boy" place-cards, lent additional color to the pleasing function.

The Rev. James C. Gilbert, Hulmeville, chaplain of Soby Post, served as toastmaster, being presented to the gathering by Mrs. Warren Randall, Auxiliary president, who warmly welcomed the assemblage.

The toastmaster, who introduced several officers and guests, added to the evening's enjoyment with a humorous poem, and numerous jokes.

William A. Thomas, a member of Soby Post, and also deputy commander of the Ninth District of Pennsylvania, was the first speaker. Mr. Thomas in speaking of the ex-service men's desire for cash payment of the adjusted compensation, mentioned that the government at present is paying out vast sums to "every group under the sun" . . . "The ex-service men aren't asking for something that does not belong to them. They are merely asking for an earlier payment of a debt that is owed them."

Mrs. George Croner, president of the Bi-County Council of the American Legion Auxiliary (Bucks-Montgomery) also brought greetings, making a plea for those eligible to join the Auxiliary. She told that the first thought of the Auxiliary is for the care of the disabled soldiers and sailors, and the next thought for widows and orphans of those who served their country in time of conflict.

Joseph Zlot, a former commander of Soby Post, also spoke; as did also George A. Croner, of Yeadon, a former deputy commander of the Ninth District, and Richard A. Hopkins, recently elected commander of Soby Post.

Another guest of the evening was Leon Walt, commander of the Ninth District, who spoke in fiery terms of the injustice of the term, "Raiders of the Treasury" used by many in reference to ex-service men seeking payment of the compensation. "These men, many of them in need, are merely asking their government to advance payment of a debt. All manner of things are said against them because they ask such; when those at the head of the government are spending money like 'drunken sailors' for everything under the sun. The word 'bonus' is not a correct term. It is misapplied. It is not a 'bonus.' It is a debt," he added as he referred to payments made by the men during their period of service.

Turning attention to preparedness, Mr. Walt said "The American Legion stands for proper adequate defense . . . The Father of our Country, Washington, many times said 'The best way to prevent war is to be prepared for war.' No one here wants war, and I

THE VOTER'S DUTY

The voter's duty to himself and his State is to go out and vote tomorrow.

Republican voters in years past have been taking too much for granted.

They have been so certain of big majorities that many of them have not troubled to go to the polls.

This year Democrats are making the strongest bid for support in their party's history.

Democrats will make every effort to get out every Democratic vote. A Republican who does not vote this year gives his support to the opposition at a time when his party needs him as never before.

WORKERS NOT BETTER OFF: WAGE RAISE OFFSET BY H.C.I.

The average American farmer, working man or other citizen who may chance to have a larger income now than in 1933 is not "better off" than he was a year ago, because the cost of living has advanced more rapidly than has the increased wage, according to statistics compiled by official administration authorities. This fact is stressed by Co-Chairman Chester C. Bolton of the Republican Senatorial-Congressional Committee.

"Donald Richberg, leading New Deal spokesman, estimates wages in industry have increased 8 1/2 per cent. over 1933," said Bolton. "The United States Department of Labor reports that 31 per cent. of wage earnings were spent for food in 1933."

"In consequence of the New Deal policies, living costs have increased tremendously. Figures of representative stores show that food products have increased from 50 to 150 per cent., yet the farmer has not received a corresponding benefit."

"According to Labor Department statistics a worker earning $25 a week or $1300 a year in 1933, paid $400 for food, leaving $900 for rent, heat, light, clothing and other necessities. If we assume that the average individual has done even better than Richberg estimates and is now earning ten per cent. more than he did last year, the worker earning $25 a week would now be getting $27.50 a week or $1430 a year."

"But this year his food costs have risen 50 to 150 per cent. Assuming that the worker is fortunate enough to pay only a 75 per cent. increase for the pork and beef and flour and other products he buys, it will cost him $700 for foodstuffs, leaving $630 for rent, heat, light, clothing and other necessities."

"In other words, he has received $140 increase in pay but his food alone costs him $270 more. Is he better off?"

Candidate Joe Guffy of Pennsylvania, George Creel of California and Senator Millard Tydings of Maryland, all have learned that when seeking a big fat slice of pork or a promise of one, good until after election, the place to apply is at the White House—not at the Public Works Administration, where it is necessary to establish merit before an allotment can be obtained.

Still, you can't expect much of a race whose most famous men got that way by knocking a little ball in a hole.

A woman is a person who hates her furniture if it isn't like her neighbor's and hates her hat if it is.

Echoes of The Past

By Louise White Watson

Nothing New

Sixty-six years ago this month, one died, Robert Owen, who predicted and was laughed at for so doing, laughed at as an idealist, when he advocated such extraordinary things as an eight-hour working day, the abolishing of child labor in factories, "universal education, healthy dwellings for workmen, and an examination of the monetary question and banking and currency problems." You recall a radio talk given by Mrs. Roosevelt wherein she said, "We thought we had put something new before the public when the New Deal was launched, only to find this move had been ante-dated by hundreds of years." The eight-hour work-day has long been in evidence, but many recall when men went forth in the early hours of the day in order that work might be in progress when the seven o'clock whistles blew. I have reason to recall one morning when the carpenters were to do some repairing at the old Pine Grove school house. My local school director, the late William H. Moon, of nursery fame, asked me to leave the keys with him that they might be in readiness for the carpenters when they began work at seven o'clock. Why I forgot this simple request, I never knew, but I did, for on reaching home after a three-mile walk, school then dismissing at four o'clock, I found the keys lying inside my dinner basket. Those keys must be there early Saturday morning, so, early Saturday morning, in mid-winter, I sallied forth leaving home at six o'clock. As it was dark! You who know the road, recall at that time, there was a dense woods on either side of the way and leading, so it seemed to the young teacher at that early hour, from hither to thence. The heart knocked the ribs. Was there no end to that lonely stretch? And then I looked up. The heavens were thick with stars. Some of them, I know, saw me, felt my trepidation, and then what did they do on that bitter winter morning, but send me a message direct from heaven. It "quieted pain and sorrow." It one were to look up often!

Another Picture

Do you recall when the carpenters with their kits shouldered, started out in the early morning to walk the distance to where their work was awaiting them? Frank White and David Cook, the contractors and carpenters of our village, would give those kits a hoist, filled as they were with a varied assortment of tools, and then with one hand supporting them on their resting place, the shoulder, off they trudged. Just imagine it today! One has heard them recount how they were, at times, invited into that big kitchen of the farmer, in order that they might "thaw out" their tools, but you and I know that no farmer lived who did not only extend a hearty greeting to the wind-blown men, but advised Mrs. Farmer to rejoice them with a steaming cup of coffee. Not that she needed any suggestion in this line, for she ever held her morning coffee-pot as chaste. It served and served. And then that heaping plate placed before the men, a second breakfast, for no one was ever known to refuse one of those fried ham, cream gravy, fried potatoes, and all the other good things that graced the farmers' tables. Did the depression, so cause that generous slice of ham in the old days, to shrink somewhat? Did the cream invite its cousin, Milk, to lend a hand? Were the fried potatoes heaped into the "saucy dish" as plentiful as before? Let us hope so, for there are even yet, many days when work calls forth the laborer at hours that have no calling acquaintance with the eight-hour day. And though the times are agitating even shorter hours, yet Old Sol goes on his way unswervingly. The Harvest Moon and the Hunter's Moon smile just as silvery, no matter what length man apportions as a day. They call down to us, "You can't change things. There is nothing new. There are just so many revolutions in life, color them as you will." The lightning, the thunder, the wintry snows, know no eight-hour day. They visit when they will and where they will, beyond man's control. Echo sings as she ever did sing and we listen, listen as we ever did.

Is This New?

One reads that a new British bank has in its armor a special steel which, if attacked by oxyacetylene torch, will send out a shower of sparks of such magnitude that they will cover an "extensive area." And then along comes the wit, with, "If that bank and all the other banks over there were to turn those sparks into gold and cover the area, when a neighborly torch is applied, of reaching across the wide ocean and drop them into the many waiting banks in the United States where it is said they are due, yes, then that would be news." Meteoric showers have happened, you know.

Wigwag Signaling

It, too, belongs to the long-ago past. This method was used for some time in the United States Army. Some one resorted to that waving, carrying messages that were read and understood, that governed and determined many actions. But it was in commercial operation as far back as 250 B. C. The Army has discontinued its use, substituting radio and telegraphic communications. The smoke rising from the Indian made plain his meaning to other members of his tribe, still signified on many occasions. Nature, Man, and God all have their own signals and they date back to time at its birth. They are not new. They have ever been. Improved on? Perhaps. It only needed some one "to meet us at the swamp, to wake Nicodemus in the distance, the gondola in Venice, but does it surpass it in the romance of the hour, when one propels it at the pace that allows for conversation, for observation, for the dreamy silence that pictures the whole world at peace, at rest? But their purpose is the same. It leaves one port and makes for another. Whether one catches one's breath as the boat cuts the water with terrific speed, or leans over with finger tips trailing the water, the purpose is ever the same. You recall what Julia Ward Howe once said, after declaring she would never ride in one of those wicked speed-wagons, the automobile, and after being forced to accept a ride in one, said, "If I had known how easy the going, I'd have had one myself, long ago." The prancing steeds, the swift-moving car!

Gov. Robert E. Pattison, who with Gov. Gifford Pinchot, has the distinction of serving two terms in the executive chair, was the last Democratic Governor of Pennsylvania. He completed his second term in 1895, just 40 years before the beginning of the next administration.

Forty-one individuals have represented Pennsylvania in the United States Senate since 1890.

If Joseph F. Guffy is elected this year he will be the 42nd Pennsylvania Senator and the first Democrat since before the turn of the century.

If Senator David A. Reed is re-elected he will become one of a small group of three or four Senators from taken your mother's picture down from the wall, Susan. You needn't have done that. If you'd asked for it, I'd have given it to you." Her chin quivered as if Susan had hurt her feelings. They seemed to be much more sensitive than the rest of her face, as if they had a separate life of their own.

"I was afraid my father would get the picture, and I didn't want it in Mrs. Honper's house," Susan said bluntly. She had taken it down from the wall and put it in the bottom of her trunk that morning, thinking that neither of her aunts would notice or care what had become of it.

It was dark when she reached the Cullens' and somewhere along the street was the appetizing odor of ham frying. But the white house was dark from cellar to attic and when Susan rang the doorbell there was no answer. Only the sound of the bell itself as it buzzed in the kitchen.

She went on down the street to Uncle Arthur's store. Sometimes Aunt Nell slipped out to get some forgotten item for a meal from the store, and she was probably there now taking down a jar or bottle from a shelf or asking Mr. Jennings, the butcher, to wrap up eight veal cutlets for her and to please be quick about it.

But when Susan entered the store no one was in it but Mr. Jennings himself, sitting behind the delicatessen counter, reading the evening paper.

"Mr. Cullen's been gone since four o'clock," he told Susan. "He and Mrs. Cullen went down to the commission house to see some pink grapefruit that had just come in down there. Shaddock, it's called." He cocked an eye at the clock. "They ought to be home soon. Been gone nearly two hours."

He leaned forward in his chair and picked an apple from a crate that stood on the floor near him. "How about a nice apple?" he asked, and held it out to her. "Don't you want to sit down and wait?"

"No, thanks. But will you please tell them I was here?"

Susan was only a few yards from the store when a street car stopped at the corner to drop two of its passengers. A slender girl in a red hat and fur coat and a tall broad shouldered young man who seemed to tower above her as they started up the street side by side.

Instantly Susan recognized them. Mary Cullen and Allen. Their heads were turned toward each other and Mary's scarlet hat was like a live coal in the glow of a street lamp that they passed under as they came along. Susan could hear their voices through the still cold air. She could hear Allen's laugh.

Moving like a breath she crossed the street and watched them from the shadow of a tree. They went very slowly, and it seemed an age before she heard the opening and closing of the Cullen's front door. A light flashed out from the windows of the living room. Not until then did Susan move.

She never remembered her walk home that night. But presently she was there, walking past the iron stag in the front yard and going up the stone steps.

After dinner she went upstairs and finished packing her trunk. Her books and her desk set, the six dotted muslin dresses that had been her entire wardrobe last summer, her underthings all hemmed by hands, her one evening gown, the blue flannel dress that she had worn the first time she saw Allen, the violet toilet water whose scent reminded her of the cheap little bunch of violets that he had bought her on the library steps three weeks before.

And when she had put everything in and had locked the trunk she went out into the carpetless hall and stood for a moment looking into the room that had belonged to him. In the mirror above the dresser she could see her own figure silhouetted against the light in the hall.

DEVELOPED BY AMERICAN INITIATIVE

THE telephone was invented in America. American enterprise and initiative took it and from it developed telephone service as we know it today. Fundamental research and discovery provided the equipment. Then, energetic promotion of the telephone business made industry conscious of the value of this entirely new method of rapid personal communication.

THE usefulness of the telephone in the home was also demonstrated—it enlarges horizons, it breaks the monotony of house work for wives and mothers, it extends friendships and social contacts, contributing to greater comfort and ease of living.

Rural America was approached—and the farmer quickly sensed the advantage of telephone service. American rural life today enjoys a communication service practically unknown in the rest of the world.

AMERICAN initiative with American inventive genius and American business methods has produced—and will continue to produce—the best telephone service in the world. Every Pennsylvania Bell Telephone user shares in that service. We urge its broader and broader use, because telephone service as America knows it contributes much to the American way of living.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA
Associated with the Bell System—participating in and benefiting from the telephone research, telephone development and nationwide telephone experience which have given America the world leadership in telephone service.

SPORT
LANGHORNE HOLDS
BRISTOL TO 6-0 SCORE

By Jack Orr
A band of pucky warriors forming the Langhorne High football eleven traveled to Bristol Saturday, and held the mighty Cardinal and Gray to a 6-0 score.
The Bristol lads were expected to crash through this club and pile up another large total but the marvelous punting of George Meldrum and the great defensive work of the Langhorne line, inside their own 20, kept Bristol from adding any more than one tally all afternoon.
It was "Joe" Conti who scored the lone touchdown of the day. As the second period began the Cardinal and Gray started a march from their own 45 yard marker. With every member of the backfield taking his turn they brought the ball within scoring distance and Conti carried it across.
Following the score the Bristol boys went after the ball and showed their real power. After the visitors were held Meldrum, the Langhorne signal-caller, got another line kick away which rolled to the Bristol one yard line. There Ross picked it up and returned to the fifteen.
The resilient line then shed their mediocre garb which they were wearing all afternoon and opened hole after hole for the Bristol ball carriers to scamper through. On this march five first downs were completed and the ball was on the Langhorne 12 yard line as the half ended.
As the second half opened the Bristol eleven went back to their drab style of play shown in the first period and failed to get going the remainder of the try.
On "Jim" Spencer's kick-off in the third period Langhorne pulled the famous Navy return kick. Meldrum receiving this ball on his own forty immediately punted back to the Bristol 27 yard line.
The only scoring chance that Langhorne had was the result of a pass from "Bud" Lawrence to "Jack" Ross, making a first down on the Bristol eight yard line. But the Bunnies' line came to life and threw the Langhorne ball carriers for losses. "Ernie" Orazi broke through and twice nailed the runner.
The remainder of the fray was uninteresting as the Bristol club tore first down after first down but failed to take across another score.
Saturday the "Bunnies" made 16 first downs for a total of 63 initial downs for the season. This is an average of 13 per game.
On Friday the Bunnies travel to La Salle to play one of their biggest games of the season.

St. Ann's and Opponents
Fail to Score in Game

number of yards for a first down on six occasions.

The power of the St. Ann's team was shown in the first half of the fray, they proving helpless during the second half. However, in justice to the team it must be stated that during the second half the Purple and Gold did quite a bit of kicking to keep the ball deep into the Eagles' territory, which was sound strategy and would have worked had the locals been able to cross the final white chalk stripe in the final quarter.

The Saints were strengthened by the return of Mast Cataline, brilliant wingman. Conti, who has been playing splendidly all season, was absent yesterday and Cataline filled in. It was his kicking as well as that of Tosti which kept the oral deep in the Wissahickon territory during the match. "Frank" Neindorf made his debut with the Saints, and was an aid in stopping many of the Wissahickon plays.

The Bucks County champions almost pushed over a counter in the first period. The Eagles won the toss and chose to receive. Niccols did the kicking off and planted the ball on the ten-yard line where S. Konowal returned it ten yards. A short pass failed, and Strain made two yards off tackle. A kick sailed to midfield where it was received by Bornice who carried it to Wissahickon's forty-five. Gallone punctured the left side of Wissahickon's line for seven yards and Quici followed with a first down. Quici was injured on the play and replaced by Tershon. Gallone hit a stonewall at tackle and lost a yard, but Tershon gained it back with a thrust to the right side of the line. Bornice had a close call when Mizza almost intercepted his pass. Tosti kicked beyond the end zone and the ball was put in play on the twenty-yard line.

A criss-cross gave Durb a yard and Strain was stopped without a gain. A Wissahickon boot was blocked and was recovered by Niccols on the 28-yard line. Bornice tried end without a gain. Gallone made a yard at tackle and then a reverse with Tulio carrying the ball brought it to the ten-yard line. Gallone did not gain anything at tackle and on the fourth try, Tosti was headed for a touch-down but slipped on the five-yard line and failed. Durb faked a kick and tried end but Cataline got him for a two yard loss. Kulak fooled St. Ann's team but grabbing the ball on a weak side play and raced 23 yards before being downed on his 26-yard line. Strain made four yards and followed by crashing through tackle for another yard. Kulak made it a first down through center. A pass was completed but a Wissahickon player was detected holding and a 15-yard penalty imposed. Durb broke loose on an end run and raced to midfield but was hit hard and fumbled. St. Ann's recovered, tried two plays without a gain and then Cataline kicked beyond the end zone as the first quarter ended.
Strain smashed tackle for three yards and Kulak followed with an end run that failed. Lewis booted to Bornice who was downed on the 48-yard line. Tosti edged his way through tackle for six yards and Seneca lost a yard at center. Tosti's quick kick rolled to Wissahickon's 31 yard line. Strain took a yard off tackle and Kulak failed to add any yardage on an end run. Mizza downed Lewis' kick on the Saints' 42-yard mark. Bornice got loose on an end run and raced to the 32-yard line. Seneca ripped five yards off tackle and Tosti made it a first down on a criss-cross. Gallone hit the line and failed and Bornice took two yards around end. Two passes fell short and Wissahickon received the ball. Konowal rushed tackle for four yards and Strain made it a first down on a short man play. Tulio nailed L. Konowal before he could get started. Strain smacked the left side and failed. Lewis kicked out of bounds at midfield. Seneca found a large opening through guard for 12 yards and a first down. Tosti made four more and then a fumble gave Wissahickon the ball. A pass was completed as the first half ended.
Niccols kicked off to Strain on the five yard line and the Wissahickon back eluded three St. Ann's players to rest the ball on the 40 yard line. Strain and Durb did not gain through the line but on a deceptive play, Christman made twelve yards. A long pass intended for Konowal was downed, but another was successful and captured by L. Christman on the Saints' 35-yard line. Strain made four yards and Durb another. A pass failed and Konowal was stopped on the St. Ann's 30-yard line. Tershon and Seneca hit the line but to no avail, and M. Cataline booted to Wissahickon's 38-yard mark. Lewis got two yards off tackle and Strain was on the receiving end of a pass as his team registered another first down. Lewis did not gain any yardage off tackle and then booted to the Saints' 25-yard line. A high pass to Pico was fumbled for a twelve yard loss. Seneca got two yards off tackle and M. Cataline on a fake kick raced thirteen yards. Cataline then toed the pigskin to the 42-yard line where Niccols nailed Lewis. Line plays by K. Konowal, Strain and Lewis gave the visitors another first down. A pass was tried and intercepted by Tershon for the Purple and Gold on their own 29-yard line.

As the fourth period opened, St. Ann's immediately kicked and Seneca downed Lewis on his own 28-yard line. Kulak added three yards off tackle and an end run by Lewis was good for four more. A quick kick was grabbed by Tosti on his own 40-yard line. Seneca tried tackle without success. A pass was blocked and Bornice worked a spinner for three yards. Tosti booted to Lewis on the Wissahickon 12-yard line. D. Konowal tried a sweeping end run but was nailed for an eight-yard loss. A long kick was caught by Bornice who ran back the ball to the 42-yard line. A pass, Bornice to Tulio, was completed for a short gain. Tosti failed to find a hole at tackle. M. Cataline kicked to the Eagles' two-yard line, where Tums downed the ball. Strain got two yards on an end run and Lewis added another. Lewis tried to kick out of danger but three Purple and Gold linemen rushed through and blocked the kick. The ball rolled to the one-yard line where Moonie Seneca recovered.
Four plays failed to take the ball over for the Bucks County champions and in receiving the ball, Wissahickon smashed their way to two consecutive first downs. Strain paved the way for both of these with his line-crashing. Before the tilt was over, the St. Ann's line held and Lewis kicked to Bornice who led the way to midfield. St. Ann's made another first down before the game ended.

The toastmaster remarked after the talk of Mr. Walt "Our business is to work for peace, but I believe the American Legion is right in its stand on preparedness. There are times when we find it necessary to bear arms . . . The One whom I profess to follow said 'Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for his friend.'" The toastmaster then made a plea that all present stand behind any organizations with which they are affiliated in their programs for peace.

Tribute was paid by the Rev. Gilbert to the chief guest of honor, Mrs. Annie Soby, mother of the late Jesse W. Soby, for whom the local post of the Legion is named.

The menu included: Creamed chicken, parsley potatoes, peas, rolls, butter, cole slaw, pickles, olives, celery, coffee, ice cream, lady fingers, mints, nuts.
